|-------------------------------|---|
| WARNING IN EFFECT: | There are no public warnings in effect at this time. For additional marine information, please view our Marine forecast on our website, met.gov.bs. |
| GENERAL SITUATION: | An upper-level trough, coupled with lingering tropical moisture, will continue to support a few pops of showers and thunderstorms this afternoon, with activity gradually waning through to the evening hours. Elsewhere, a dry air mass within a deep ridging pattern will continue to yield relatively stable conditions, while supporting moderate to locally fresh breezes through tonight. Outlook: As this mid-to upper level trough exits the area through Wednesday and deep ridging develops across the region, weather conditions should remain fairly quiet, with only the chance of a few afternoon showers associated with daytime heating as temperatures gradually warm through Thursday. By Friday, a weak frontal boundary is forecast to move into the Northern Bahamas, bringing increased shower and thunderstorm activity across the Northern and Northwest Bahamas as it stalls in the vicinity through the weekend. |
| SPECIAL WEATHER NOTES: | Rip Currents: There remains a moderate to high risk of rip currents for the Atlantic waters and all east and southeast coastal waters of the island chain. Swimmers in these areas are urged to remain nearshore. UV Index: Higher UV levels are expected over the next few days across portions of the island chain. Therefore, the public is urged to remain hydrated, wear protective clothing, such as wide-brimmed hats, sunglasses, and sunscreen, and to seek shaded areas during peak daylight hours. |
